

Beevote

Here we have a group of friends that often organize together hangouts, events and travels.

They always organize with a group chat service, and this time want to decide where to go for the weekend.

Alex try to start the topic on chat

But...

When it's time to hangout...

When it's time to hangout...

Alex is angry because nothing was organized for the weekend

Claire says: "What a bore! We never well organize our nights!"

We need a system that allows groups of people to clearly organize their events preventing offtopics and specify crucial details as place, date or time.

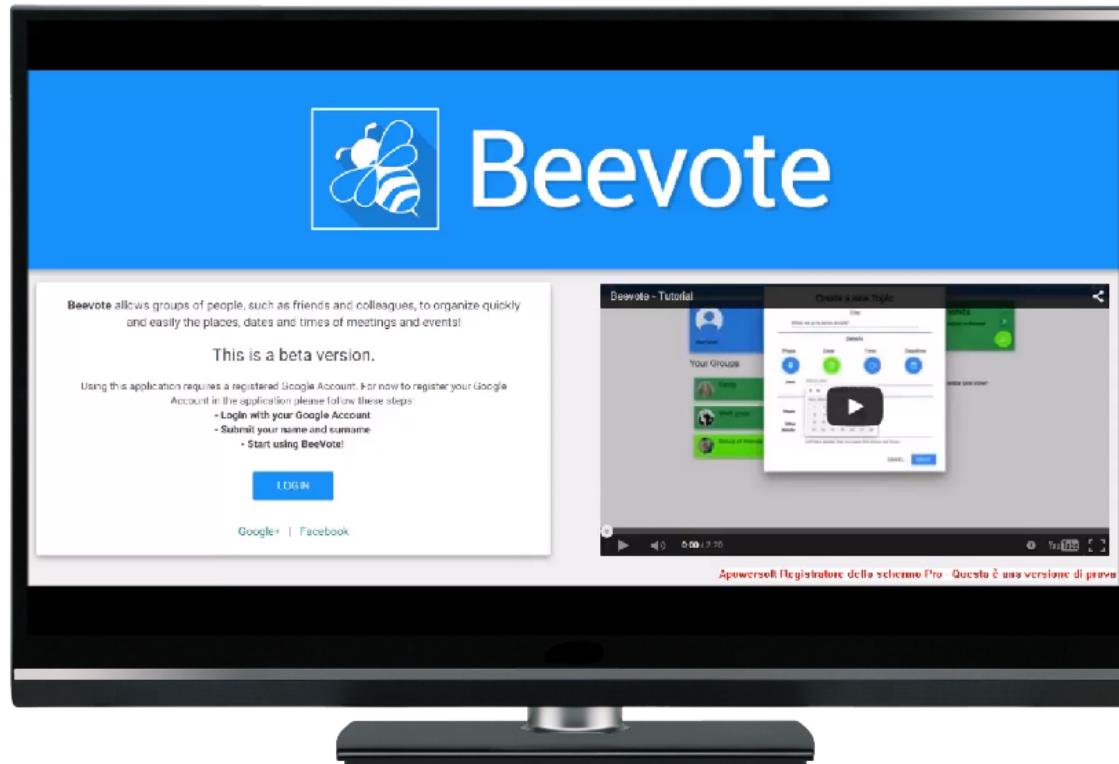

Beevote

Beevote is a system that allows groups of people, as friends or colleagues, to organize their meetings and events in a simple and quick way with detailed topics handled by votable proposals.

Doodle

Doodle

- Doodle is not oriented to groups of people.
- Doodle allow to vote only on date and time: other attributes are static.
- Doodle doesn't have real users that can be used for social features: only "flying" names.

Ganiza

Ganiza

With Ganiza, for each event, I have always to invite people even if I have a usual group of friends.

Is not easy take confidence with the interface because there is a "multilevel" navigation.

With Ganiza only the creator of the event can create proposals, others can only vote.
